New Screen Magazine

No. 86

"See America First!" That is a slogan which new screen magazine 86 preaches when it shows some delightful mountain and brook scenes of the American countryside. These scenes can vie in beauty with the Alps or Pyrennes.

Uncle Sam is busily at work in the Treasbary Building in Washington, D. C., printing paper money. There are several kinds of presses, but no machine ever invented equals the human hand in the delicate operation of polishing and printing plate. The "shots" include scenes where the money is examined and checked and scenes of the silver vaults. There is a great vault in which are kept all the plates for printing paper money, and of all the 4,500 employees in the bureau, only five have ever entered this vault.

This issue of the magazine has a pleasing diversion on "How to Pick Your Husband by His Cigar" and some humorous excerpts entitled "With the Wise Birds."
